

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method for enhancing a serial transmission, such as for example, a television broadcast by combining selected data with the conventional serial transmission signal is described herein. The type of data is selected via a template that is used to merge and format the data. The data is combined with the serial transmissions to yield an enhanced serial transmission.